Don Post Studios Custom Masks

These super deluxe natural latex rubber masks are made entirely in the U.S.A. Hand painted and assembled by the world's top artists in this field. This assures you of top quality. They cover the entire head and still remain flexible. Hands are also available to accompany some of the characters. Many of these masks have appeared in some of your favorite films and T.V. series thus making your mask truly a collector's item. Created exclusively by Don Post Studios each remarkable mask will be a treasure for years to come! You will scare everyone!

Early in 1939, before the outbreak of the war in Europe, Don Post, Sr. created his first "Over-the-Head" rubber masks. Today, Don Post Studios continue to produce "Over-the-Head" rubber masks for the commercial market, and in addition, supply custom masks and props to motion picture and television studios.

Some of the more familiar artists, shows, producers and directors who have summoned the Post Studio craftsmen for their special talents are listed to the right.

Retailers throughout the country prominently feature Don Post creations, and night clubs, circuses, and advertising agencies refer to Don Post for unique creative design.

An authority on rubber masks, make-up appliances, theatrical props and accessories, the Don Post Studios remain an integral part of the Hollywood scene.

Following right in Don Post, Sr. footsteps is Don Post, Jr. "I have a deep respect for my father's artistic talent and reputation in the motion picture industry and with you, his customers. I hope to carry on this relationship." Don Jr's presence is an assurance of continued quality and design, demanded by his father.

Also following in the Don Post Studios tradition is Bill Malone an accomplished sculptor and special effects designer in the motion picture industry. As Vice President of this Studio he now heads the Research and Development Section of the Studio. It is from this section that the world's most unique mass produced masks originate.

Don Post Studios listens, and is always open to your suggestions as to what new types of merchandise your customers want. The aim of Don Post Studios is to supply the best possible quality items, to insure customer satisfaction, and keep our customers' carry over of stock to a minimum.
